A RIGID CROSS EXAMINATION

Of Police Captain White Took Place in the Fosburg Trial This Morning, but Nothing New Developed—The Reason for Excluding Several Newspaper Men—The Evidence.

Pittsfield, Mass., July 23.—Chief of Police Nicholson was the star witness in today's proceedings in the Fosburg case. The chief has said ever since the trial began that he would disappoint those who expected him to spring any sensations. "My evidence will be plain and matter of fact," said the chief.

His story was chiefly of the events succeeding the murder and of his investigation of the conditions surrounding the Fosburg residence and of the stories told by members of the family. The state had some half a dozen witnesses on the stand today, including Captain White and Officer Flynn of the local police department. White was on the stand at adjournment last night and resumed this morning on cross examination by Lawyer Joyner. Both these men were among the first arrivals at the scene of the tragedy after its enactment. Flynn's story comprehended interviews with the elder Fosburg, Robert S. and Beatrice. Flynn said Beatrice told him on the morning of August 20 that she saw no burglars in the house. This was in corroboration of the story told by Captain White. It was expected last night that Beatrice would take the stand sometime today on a call from the state. This however, it had practically been decided that she would not be asked to testify for the commonwealth. She may be called for the defense.

Judge Stevens opened court this morning by excluding representatives of the New York Journal, New York Herald and New York World, because of the publication in their papers of an account of the Fosburgs' being at the grave of the daughter May on Sunday, and of words purporting to have been said by Mrs. Fosburg, Sr., in prayer. The Judge said that he considered the publication likely to prejudice and that while the publishers were out of the jurisdiction of the court, their representatives he believed should be prevented from reporting the trial further.

"If I have sufficient evidence to fix the articles upon the individual writers, I may take further action later," said Judge Stevens. The jury was excluded while this opinion was being rendered.

Captain White, of the police department was cross examined this morning and told of finding burned matches in the Fosburg house after the homicide. The defense claims these were left by burglars.

"I credited the story of the burglars on the morning of the tragedy. I did not see however, how a burglar could get through the window, as R. S. Fosburg said he did," said the officer.

"Do you think the elder Fosburg's story of the burglar with a lantern in his hand improbable?" was asked.

"I did."

Captain White said he did not see any footprints on the Dalton road that night, but he did find tracks on the lawn.

For an hour attorney Joyner tried to break down the story of the witness relative to the conditions of the Fosburg house after the shooting.

A bomb was sprung today when Lawyer Crosby offered a hatband with the name of James B. A. Fosburg on it. It was found concealed under a carpet in one of the rooms of the Fosburg house and it is alleged that it came from the old hat offered in evidence as the one which was left by the burglars, as the defense has claimed.

As published in these dispatches yesterday, the defendant's young brother James was called to the stand. The young Yale graduate made an interesting figure on the stand, and his testimony was direct and conclusive. It apparently left no doubt that his explanation of the reason why he did not know that burglars had been in the house and killed his beautiful sister was truthful and straightforward. His testimony greatly increased the faith of the defense in the ultimate acquittal of his brother.

James was slightly nervous, and this was noticeable when any reference was made to the death of his sister or to the scanty gifts of the members of his family on the right of the tragedy.

The expected attempt of the Government to delve into the question of family quarrels did not materialize, and James Fosburgh's explanation of his attempt to get doctors, his return to the death chamber and his ministration to his parents, created a favorable impression in the minds of all who listened to him.

In contradiction of the testimony of a previous Government witness to the effect that he had seen James Fosburgh in the house after the murder, with his suspenders hanging down young Fosburgh swore that he had not owned a pair of suspenders for five years. Dramatic, however, was the scene when James Fosburgh described his ascent of the front stairs after he had heard "terrible shrieks," yet not knowing just what had happened; the meeting with his sister-in-law, who, as he said, "appeared before me in the light." She was in her night dress said witness, and exclaimed in fear: "Your father's gone crazy."

The day also witnessed the production as a witness of Dr. W. W. Schofield, the first physician to visit the Fosburgh home after the tragedy. Although called by the Government, his testimony apparently told in favor of the defense.

The superstructure which the Government erected over the foundation last week cannot therefore be said to be complete. It has been suggested by friends of the Fosburgh family that in the event of the Government not making a stronger case the defense may not put in any testimony. Even should the witnesses for the defendant go on the stand, it is believed that the case will be finished by Thursday night at the latest.

Police Officer George B. Chapman gave an entire new bit of evidence. He stated that he found a number of matches of a different make from those used by the family in a bedroom of his house and near the doorstep outside, on the next morning after the Fosburgh shooting. Witness said that his wife declared that there must have been burglars in the house that night. Matches found in the Fosburgh house were similar to those found by Mr. Chapman.

In an interview Lawyer H. C. Joyner, counsel for the defense, stated that it was possible that at the conclusion of the present Government's case he would make a motion that the Court order a verdict of not guilty. It is understood that Miss Beatrice Fosburgh, who was to have been the chief witness, will not be called by the Government, which leaves Chief of Police Nicholson as the only important witness yet to be heard for the prosecution.

ATTEMPT

TO ROB THE BANK AT MILAN THIS MORNING

BUT IT PROVED TO BE A FAILURE.

Outer Doors of the Safe Blown Off With Dynamite but Burglars Failed to Get at the Coin—Bank Contained $15,000—it was Robbed Ten Years Ago.

Milan, Erie county, O., July 23.—An unsuccessful attempt was made early this morning to rob the private bank of Stoddard and Lockwood. The outer doors of the safe were blown off with dynamite. The noise of the explosion aroused a young man sleeping next door and he telephoned an alarm. The telephone bell gave warning to the burglars, three in number, and they gave up the job and made their escape with a horse and buggy stolen from Fred Meacham. This is the second experience of the kind for the Milan bank in the past decade. Ten years ago the safe was blown to pieces and in the neighborhood of $20,000 was stolen. When the attempt was made last night the safe contained close to $15,000.

PLAIN SCAR

TO BE SEEN IN ELLIS GLENN'S HAND, SAID PHYSICIAN.

Parkersburg, W. Va., July 23.—Dr. W. A. Howard, of Vincent, O., who formerly practiced medicine here was the most important witness on the stand yesterday in the Ellis Glenn trial. He testified that in the spring of 1897 he treated a man and a woman, both of the name of Glenn. He did not know Glenn's first name and did not identify the patient with Ellis Glenn.

Dr. Howard stated that Ellis Glenn had a scar on her leg, caused by a fracture, and that she has a scar in the palm of the hand where Elbert is said to have been cut. He was surprised that others who examined her had not seen the scar, as it was plain. He said it looked more like a burn than a cut. He had not found any scar on her head.

Isaiah Tucker, who worked at a livery stable, stated that "Johnny" Glenn had brought a horse to the stable, but he failed to identify "Johnny" with Elbert or Ellis Glenn in any way.

E. L. Fairbanks said he knew Elbert Glenn was a man, for they had visited resorts together.

Chicago men are promoting the combination. It is said that the Standard Oil interests are behind the scheme.

PRESS-POST

Receivership of the Paper Suspended by the Circuit Court—Former Management Restored.

Columbus, O., July 23.—The decision of Judge Summers of the Circuit Court, suspending the receivership of the Columbus Press-Post property pending the final hearing of the case on its merits, places the paper again in the hands of the editor of a majority of the stockholders. Receiver L. C. Spates stepped down and last morning Mr. President C. M. Jones again took charge. Spates remained with Mr. Jones' appraiser, Miss Palmer, the keeper, returned. She has been most closely working together with the combination to the office since the first day of the litigation. The receiver was obliged to employ a large number of men, particularly to hold the safe in order to get a full office up. It is said that President Jones now threatens to sue for damages for this.

Mr. Jones this morning installed Thomas Cooper as managing editor. Mr. Cooper was formerly a telegraph editor and was the only one of the ice famine in Columbus today, as all employees not taking part in the recent strike. For this he was expelled from the Newswriters' Union and has not since been reinstated. Trouble is now anticipated over his appointment as managing editor, although personally there can be no complaint against him.

The receivership case will probably not be heard on its merits until the Fall term of the Circuit court.

BLEW UP

AND FIFTEEN MEN WERE KILLED AT STOCKHOLM.

AMERICAN OIL VESSEL BURNED.

Had Just Arrived at Stockholm, Sweden, From Philadelphia—Two Men Escaped but They Were Seriously Burned—They Jumped Overboard When Terrific Explosion Occurred.

Stockholm, Sweden, July 23.—The American bark Louise Adelaide, of laden, blew up in the harbor this morning. Seventeen men were aboard. Two sailors escaped to the shore and it is believed they are the only survivors of the disaster.

Captain Orr in command of the ship had just arrived from Philadelphia. Four Swedish custom officers had boarded and were making the customary inspection when a terrific explosion occurred, the cause of which is unknown. It tore the ship's deck from stem to stern.

Streams of burning oil were scattered over the men and the ship enveloping all in a fierce blaze.

The two men saved were seriously burned. They saved their lives by jumping overboard. It is believed the others were so suddenly overwhelmed that they could make no effort to save themselves.

MARRIES

And a Serious Entanglement With the Law May Ensue—Her Divorce Case Settled.

Sandusky, O., July 23.—Miss Nannie Moos, it is said, is now Mrs. George Engleit. It is stated that she was married to Engleit in Buffalo last Wednesday in the presence of her father and mother, and she is now in this city. She intends to live near Castalia, in a home provided by her husband, if her entanglement with the court can be straightened out satisfactorily.

Nannie's matrimonial venture are making her famous. Her last divorce is not much more than a month old, and she has plunged again it seems into the matrimonial sea in defiance of the rulings of the Court. Last Tuesday Judge Reed, becoming suspicious that his Court had been trifled with by the fair divorcee, suspended the decree of divorce pending a further investigation. Then it developed that Nannie Moos and Mr. Engleit were out of the city and a rumor came floating back to Sandusky that a marriage had taken place. Monday the rumor was given the first corroboration. It is said that a letter was received by a Sandusky gentleman from Mr. Moos who is in Buffalo, stating that his daughter Nannie was married in that city to George Engleit on Wednesday last. At the Moos residence Miss Moos, or Mrs. Engleit, refused to talk or to be seen.

The action of the young woman in ignoring the Judge's ruling may prove serious. Contempt of Court and bigamy are two of the charges which might be preferred against her. Her name to date is Nannie Moos Leonard Browning Engleit.

MARK TWAIN

SENDS A HUMOROUS ANSWER TO A MISSOURI REQUEST.

Kansas City, July 23.—Mark Twain, in a letter received here by the Secretary of the Jubilee Association, which is planning a huge celebration to commemorate the admission of Missouri to the Union, regrets his inability to be present at the exercises in Kansas City on August 10.

The letter is dated "Among the Adirondack Lakes," and reads in part as follows:

"I am admonished in many ways that time is pushing me inexorably along. I am approaching the threshold of age. In 1917 I shall be 142. This is not the time to be flitting about the earth. I must cease from the activities proper to youth and begin to take on the dignities and gravities and inertia proper to that season of honorable senility which is on its way and imminent—as indicated above. Yours is a great and memorable occasion, and as a son of Missouri I should hold it a high privilege to be there and share your just pride in the state's achievements, but I must deny myself the indulgence, while thanking you earnestly for the prized honor you have done me in asking me to be present. Very truly yours,

ANCIENT MOUND

Of Very Peculiar Formation Being Opened Near Chillicothe on Griffith Hixon's Farm.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

Griffith Hixon is investigating an ancient mound on his farm near Chillicothe, O. It is the most peculiar known hereabouts, being built of masonry covered by clay. It is 350 feet long, 250 wide and 40 feet high. After digging through the soil on top of the mound Hixon struck an arch of stone underneath which was another arch of stone. Then came a layer of cement or concrete, so smoothly finished on the surface that a horse could not stand on it without slipping. Under this cement was a long slab of soapstone. The excavators cut into this stone several feet, when they stopped for the time being, as the work was laborious. Hixon thinks there is a vault or cave under the mound, in which are stored hidden treasures. The mound connects with the ruins of an old fortification, the outlines of whose walls are still discernible on the surface of the ground.

CHRIST'S PROMISE.

Our sins pursue us to the brink
Of that dark river we must cross,
Atonement merely palliates,
It will not, cannot heal the heart,
Sore wounded by the poisoned darts

Our conscience—mighty arbiter—
Aside will toss our beseeching hands
And wail appeal, nor question why
We strayed from the straight path
Illumined since the birth of our great
Sun.

To guide us in the right,
Still, there is a promise given.

A promise of Love and Light from Heaven:

From Him of Nazareth, who saved the
Erring woman by the way.
When He said, in mild and placid tone
"Let him who is without sin
Cast the first stone."

ALL WRONG.

The Mistake is Made by Many Newark Citizens.

Don't mistake the cause of backache. To be cured you must know the cause.

It is wrong to imagine relief is cure.

Backache is kidney ache.

You must cure the kidneys.

As a rule it was very severe but it hurt me much more when I over-exercised myself or occupied certain positions in which my back was strained considerably or when I was sitting.

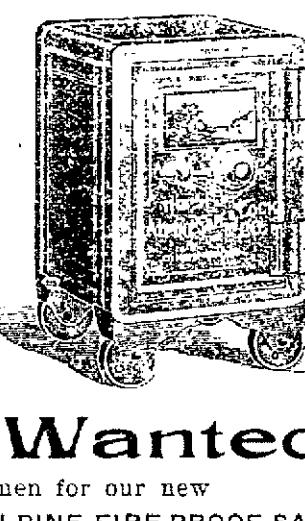

sitting, I obtained little benefit from the treatment which I took, so little in fact, that I was induced to try Doan's Kidney Pills, when Crayton Bros. first advertised them in Newark. They did for me what others failed to do, for they took away from my back that distressing pain and ache. I know of friends of mine who were as much the gainers through their use as I."

WITHIN AN ACE OF DEATH

The water main has burst! frantic men rush hither and thither. Ruin, destruction, no law & govt., etc. in the face.

How can the water be arrested? Only by closing the valves at the bottom of the reservoir. A huge cracked tube, like a sewer, leads down to the machinery that controls the sluices. The descent to the bottom is gradual, and at the bottom itself a perpendicular shaft leads up to the top of the reservoir.

Who will go along and operate the machinery?

The chief piping engineer steps forward. He is John Sulman. He seizes a lantern and a rope and prepares to do his duty. The safety of the mine, the lives of his fellow workmen, rest in the balance.

Down the steep and slimy passage he cautiously creeps. Everything is dark, noisy and foul. He slips and stumbles along, hoping against hope that the water, which has already burst the pipes, will not overflow into the shaft.

He reaches the bottom and rests his lantern on a ledge. Before him he sees the windlass of the great sluice. Like a Trojan he labors at his task. The sweat pours from him in streams, and his breath comes in gasps. The work is heavy, but he falters not, and a sigh of gratification escapes him when the windlass will turn no more and he realizes that the sluices are closed and the encroaching waters dammed back.

With a cheerful heart he picks up his lantern and prepares to retrace his footsteps, when suddenly his face blanches, his legs tremble beneath him, even as the splash of water sounds in his ears.

What has happened? He raises his lantern and gazes around. Water is failing from the sides of the perpendicular shaft. The reservoir itself has burst, and although the distributing pipes are closed, the water will force its way through the shaft, and all his efforts will be in vain. He must hurry to the entrance, close the gates and so keep the water back. He hurries up the incline at his topmost pace. Assistance must be secured to barricade the gates, for strong as they might be, the water may prove the stronger.

He reaches the exit of the shaft. The gates are there, but—

They are closed!

He staggers back in his horror. Well he realizes what has happened. The workmen, while he has been laboriously closing the sluices, have discovered the burst in the reservoir and, fearing that the rush of water will be tremendous, have given up Sulman as lost, closed the gates and left him to his fate.

Horror stricken he stands for some moments helpless. Then, frantic with desperation, he beats and tears at the gates, shrieking to be let out. But the thick iron gates only echo back his agonized cries. Shout as loud as he will, his voice cannot penetrate those massive panels.

Is there no hope for him? Must he drown like a rat in the well of a ship? For a brief second or two he ponders over his helpless position, when there dawns upon him the great hope that, after all, he may escape. He remembers that the vertical shaft has an iron ladder running up the side to the top of the reservoir. If he can get to this shaft and climb the ladder, he might escape, but—will the water at the bottom of the sloping tunnel permit him to reach the shaft?

He starts down the slope at a run, the light of his lantern casting weird shadows on the slimy walls. His feet splash in icy cold water, and a sickening fear comes over him that the bottom end of the tunnel may be completely submerged.

How long can he keep his breath? Can he last until he reaches the ladder and draw himself up so that his head will be above the surface? Those few moments of agony are as years to him. He reaches the bottom of the shaft; his hands grasp the rungs of the ladder; he slips, and his strength is going from him. There is the frightful, overwhelming impulse to open his mouth—to breathe—to shout. His groping hands grasp the ladder again, he draws himself up—up—up. Will he never reach the surface? It seems like eternity.

But at that supreme moment, when he feels that his palsied fingers can no longer grasp the rungs of the ladder his head rises above water, and the revulsion of feeling that comes over him as he takes his first breath is so great that he nearly swoons. For some seconds he can do nothing but hang on to the ladder and take in deep drafts of the revivifying air, but the water is still rising. He must mount the ladder and reach the outlet.

Hand over hand, foot over foot, he laboriously climbs. Suddenly his upward progress is arrested. His head bumps against something. He puts up his hand and gropes about.

He is foiled again. The workmen have closed the top of the shaft!

With the coming of the sun of the next day some miners approach the shaft and remove the cover in order to see how far the water has risen and to their horror discover John Sulman hanging to the ladder more dead than alive.—Penny Pictorial Magazine.

Have you ever thought what that means?

Suppose your tailor would make a suit from shoddy cloth. The clothes wouldn't hang or wear well even though cut correctly. So in prescriptions good service means more than being careful about weights and measures. It means carefulness long before your prescription is brought to us. ## THE MULE HAS CHANGED.

But It Took the Barbed Wire Fence to Reform Him.

"Speakin' of mewls and barbed wire fences," said the colonel as he sipped at his julep, "I'm jest a-tellin you that the mewl has changed about in a powerful way durin these last 20 y'rs. He ain't no mo' like he used to be than day is like night. Yo' don't find him head down, ears flappin and half asleep like yo' used to. Jest undergone a complete change. Change begun jest as soon as we introduced barbed wire fences on our plantations and been goin on till yo' find him as he is today. That's what he was waitin fur, and that's what's made him over. If we'd had barbed wire a hundred years ago, the southern mewl would have made us all rich long ago. Twenty y'ars hence the thoroughbred horse can't hold a candle to him. Befo' the days of barbed wire the mewl had his own way about everything. Yo' might stick bradawis into him, stir him up with a pitchfork, lash him with any sort of whip, and he'd hunch his back, flap his ears and beat yo' game. He'd never found anything he couldn't buck up against, and he never expected to."

"When we got the barbed wire fences it was the beginnin of the end. He walked up to 'em and smelt of 'em and figured that they wouldn't last a week, but he got left. He was used to rubbin against slivers, but those nails took hold in a different way. A prod with a pitchfork jest tickled him, but when he leaned up against a hundred sharp pointed nails he was astonished. He was mean and obstinate and sulky and onery, and be fit that wire fur five or six y'ars befo' he'd give in. He left ha'r and tail on every rod of fencing in the south, and in his meanness he'd jest tangle himself up and be found dead, but he had to come to it at last. Yes, sah, he'd found some thin he couldn't chaw up nor rub off nor break down, and when he realized it a change set in, and he was a different critter. Can't say nothin ag'in the mewl no mo'. All the meanness has gone out of him, and the day ain't far off when angels and mewls will appear together as emblems of happiness and innocence."

N. B. HOGG, OCTOGENARIAN

Who Quarter of a Century Ago Was One of Most Conspicuous Figures in Licking County--Died in Allegheny, Pa. A Sketch.

Nathaniel Breading Hogg, who about a half century ago, was probably the best known man in Newark and Licking county, at that time owner of a large amount of real estate in Newark and an operator on a large scale, died Sunday at his home 520 Church avenue, Allegheny, Pa., aged 84 years.

Mr. Hogg was one of the most widely known residents of Pittsburgh and Allegheny and one of the founders of the firm of Totter & Co.

Up until a few weeks ago Mr. Hogg was able to go about the streets of Allegheny unaccompanied. He had lived there most all his life.

Mr. Hogg's illness came upon him most unexpectedly. He had been out on one of his usual walks a couple of weeks ago and complained of weakness on his return home. From that day he grew weaker daily until his death. His wife and a number of close friends and relatives were at his bedside when the end came.

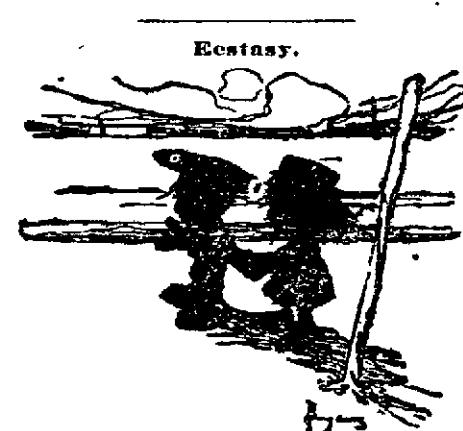

Mr. Hogg was one of the old school of gentlemen so rapidly becoming extinct. Attired in his long dark coat, with his stock tie always conspicuously displayed, and wrapped in the dignity which took one back into other decades, he was a figure calculated to command attention. His language was clear and attractive.

With the exception of the years spent in Newark, his entire four score years were passed in the vicinity of Pittsburgh, but he will be remembered by all the old residents of Licking county. His father, George Hogg, was identified with the earliest business and commercial life of Pittsburgh. His brothers were John T. Hogg of Connellsville and George Hogg of Uniontown, and his sisters Mrs. Felix Bruno, who was so long engaged in philanthropic work in the two cities in that city.

Nathaniel Hogg received his early education in the then primitive schools of Pittsburgh. Later he went to Kenyon college, receiving the finishing touches at old Jefferson college, Canonsburg. Soon after completing his education he came to Newark.

Upon completing his education Mr. Hogg entered the law office of Nathaniel Ewing in Uniontown. He was admitted to the bar, but practiced indifferently, the bent of his mind turning more to commercial affairs. With other gentlemen he organized the foundry firm of Totten & Co., now located in the Lawrenceville district, and one of the very oldest enterprises in the county. Some years ago he retired. George A. Hogg, Jr., is now the manager.

It is many years since Mr. Hogg was married. His wife, who survives him, was Miss Julia Hall, a member of an old Harrisburg family. She was one of the first presidents of the Daughters of the Revolution and still retains an active interest in the organization.

The Smugglers.

"That's the Lottery," shouted the revenue officer with the telescope, "the fastest smuggler on the coast. We've got her becalmed."

The time is no time to be lost. The breeze might spring up at any moment and the best vessel and the crew most conversant with the coast, handiest in bad weather and most reckless of consequences, remain free to renew a career of fraud and violence. So the officer in command ordered a couple of boats to be manned at once and put off to secure the prize.

But the Lotteries made up their minds not to give up their valuable cargo and fine craft without a struggle and made all the usual preparations against boarders.

As the attacking boats approached shots were exchanged, and they were finally beaten off. Ambrose Bowden, who pulled the bow oar of one of them, was killed. Indeed the officer in command would not have been justified in persevering with the attack at the risk of his men's lives, for the object he had in view, that of suppressing the Lottery, could now be attained without further sacrifice. The crew were still known, and, though it had been impossible to surprise them in an overt act of smuggling, it would be a very different matter now that they had the brand of Cain upon their foreheads. So it proved. When the affray was reported, the authorities determined to make an example and issued orders to arrest the vessel and all or any members of the crew wherever they might be found.

And now commenced the punishment of the smugglers, who led the lives of hunted rats. Officers of justice, with soldiers to aid them, were perpetually on their track. Dragoons scoured the country prowling for them. They could not visit their families without the strictest precautions and had to move about by night. In the daytime they lay concealed in barns and granaries, where they constantly heard inquiries made about them.

Of course their only chance of escape lay in the fact that the whole countryside was in their favor and against the revenue people. There was not a farmer, an innkeeper, a shopman or a laborer unwilling to do his best to aid and conceal them. Still, at every game of hide and seek the searcher wins in the end. To lie in concealment beyond a certain time is trying to the nerves. One of the smugglers, named Toms, grew tired and allowed himself to be arrested, when he turned king's evidence and pointed out Tom Potter as the man who had fired the fatal shot.

You may imagine the storm of execration which arose against the traitor, especially when the dragoons managed by a stratagem to elude the precautions taken for the concealment of Potter, who was at length arrested in his own house and carried to London. The only chance of saving him lay in getting the one witness for the prosecution, Roger Toms, out of the way. But this was difficult, for Toms, knowing well that his life was in danger, had taken refuge on board a rescue cutter, which he never left. However, certain influential and responsible persons whom she could trust sought his wife and prevailed upon her to use her influence to lure her husband away from the neighborhood of his protectors the first time that he landed to see her.

Satisfied that no violence would be offered him and anxious to save him from the disgrace of his comrade's blood, she consented and was the means of his falling into an ambush. The word given, however, was faithfully kept. No injury or unnecessary discomfort was inflicted upon him, but he was spirited away to Guernsey, with the intention of sending him to some place where he would be out of the way and unable to give evidence at the time of the trial. But Toms was traced by the government officers to Guernsey and found in the hold of a ship just sailing for America.

His evidence on Potter's trial amounted to this: That he, Toms, was in the cabin of the Lottery during the attack and that Potter had come down and said, "I have done for one of them."

For the defense an old coast guardsman, one of the boat's crew of which the murdered man was a member, was called, and he swore that Bowden was killed by an accidental shot fired by one of themselves, and in confirmation of this it was shown that the shot had entered his breast, he rowing the bow oar of a boat going toward the ship.

However, the smugglers had fired on the boats, that was evident, and some one ought to be hanged, so judge and jury were not particular to a technicality or two, and Tom Potter was condemned and executed.

The fate of Roger Toms, who informed against him, was a far worse one. The people of his native town execrated him. Even his children were brought up to detest him, for his name was a byword of reproach. He would certainly have been killed if he had gone freely about, so he remained in a menial capacity within the walls of Newgate till the day of his death.—New York News.

PHILIPPINES

AS SEEN BY A UNITED STATES SOLDIER.

Graphic Description of the Islands and People and Customs—A Letter From Charley Youse.

Mr. Charles Youse who is in the United States army in the Philippines sends home a letter to his father, Mr. Ferdinand Youse, containing the following highly interesting description of the country, natives, customs, climate and so forth, as seen by an American soldier:

The Philippines are a bunch of trouble gathered together on the western horizon of civilization. They are bounded on the north by rocks and destruction; on the east by typhoons and monsoons; on the south by cannibals and earthquakes; and on the west by hoodooism and smugglers. The climate is a combination of electrical changes especially adapted to raising Cain. The soil is extraordinarily fertile, producing large crops of insurgents and trickery. The inhabitants are very industrious, their chief occupation being trench digging, the manufacture of bolos and knives and the reloading of Remington cartridges. Their amusements are cock fighting, monte dealing, theft and cheating. Their diet consists of boiled rice, stewed rice, fried rice, baked rice, cooked rice and rice.

INCREASED PAY FOR TRACKMEN AT COLUMBUS.

Expenditures on B. & O. Improvements—Want Ventilators on Cabs. Million Employees.

As telegraphed to the Advocate yesterday afternoon from Columbus, the section hands on all railroads entering Columbus, have demanded an increase from $1.25 to $1.50 a day.

The superintendents of railroads centering in Columbus held a meeting at the Union station to consider the demand for increased pay by the section men. All the roads were represented and it was developed that the Pan Handle had increased the pay of the men one cent per hour. The superintendent of the Hocking Valley, M. S. Connors, and J. Robinson, receiver and general manager of the C. S. & H. who were authorized to act, agreed that the roads they represented would make a similar increase and date the raise from July 1, while the superintendents of the Norfolk & Western, Baltimore & Ohio and Big Four, who were not empowered to act, agreed to take the matter up with their superiors on arrival home and bring about the increase if possible.

That increase has the effect of making the pay of trackmen $1.35 per day, which, it is claimed, is the highest wages paid for that kind of labor with the single exception of the city of Chicago, where the rate is $1.50 per day. It is believed that the proposed increase will prove satisfactory to the men.

The trackmen met and discussed their scale and the best course to pursue. Some were in favor of going on strike at once, but the majority were in favor of postponing such action until after the meeting of the railroad representatives. In case the action taken by the representatives was unfavorable, it was agreed that a general strike of the trackmen should follow Wednesday morning.

The other unions, composed of railroad men are said to be considering the advisability of assisting the trackmen.

At the proposed meeting of the trackmen this evening the concessions will be officially made known to the men. Several of them stated that it is hardly probable that $1.35 will be accepted, as this is only ten cents more a day than they are now receiving. The opinion was expressed that the trackmen might be satisfied with $1.40 a day with time and a half for overtime.

Heavy Expenditures.

For the five years and eight months ending the 30th of last month between $60,000,000 and $65,000,000 has been expended by the B. & O. railroad company in improvements.

This work was essential to the rehabilitation of the property. The reorganization of the company had for its foundation and almost entire rebuilding of the road and replacement of the equipment. This has practically been done.

Of the large sum expended about 12½ per cent was taken out of the company's income. The remainder was obtained through the sale of securities under the plan of reorganization. By the acquisition of the Ohio River road the B. & O.'s mileage is increased to about 3700.

It is said that by the first of next year the Cleveland, Lorain and Wheeling, B. & O. S. W., Cleveland Terminal and Valley and Ohio river road and other subsidiary lines will be directly operated from Baltimore as divisions of the B. & O. system.

Over a Million Railway Employees.

The number of persons employed by the railroads of the United States, as reported for June 30, 1900, was 1,917,653, or an average of 529 employees per 100 miles of line. As compared with the number employed on June 30, 1899, there was an increase of 88,724 or 1½ per 100 miles of line. From the classification of these employees it appears that 42,837 were engineers, 41,130 firemen, 20,557 conductors and 72,271 other trainmen. There were 50,789 switchmen, flagmen and watchmen.

Disregarding 8391 employees not assigned to the four general divisions of employment, it is found that the services of 36,451 employees were required for general administration, 324,946 for maintenance of way and structures, 197,799 for maintenance of equipment, and 450,063 for conducting transportation.

During the year ending June 30, 1900, $577,264,841 were paid in wages.

The compensation of the employees of railroads for the fiscal year 1900 represents 60 per cent of the operating expenses of the roads and 39 per cent of their gross earnings.

Want Ventilators on Cabs.

The cabin of a shifting engine is always hot. The average temperature in summer weather is over 110. Through some neglect the majority of the cabs of shifting engines have no ventilators or trap doors. So many of the old style freight engines have been transformed to shifters that the engineers on such engines must suffer dreadfully from the heat. The regular road engines have ventilators, but the engine that moves slowly half the time, and is often standing in yards under train sheds need the ventilators most but are not equipped with the appliances.

Pennsylvania Coal.

The amount of coal produced in Pennsylvania presents an interesting study, both for railroad men and others. When it is considered that the major portion of this coal is handled by railroads it will be readily seen that the volume of business is immense. The Pennsylvania is handling an immense amount of coal, and is making preparations to handle still more of it. The B. & O. also handles a considerable quantity. The Ohio roads have had about all they could do in that line and the lake business is reported on the increase. The production of anthracite coal in Pennsylvania for the year 1900 aggregated 51,217,318 tons. The miners worked an average of 171 days. There were employed in and about the mines 143,826 men and boys. The number of persons killed was 411 and 1,057 non-fatal accidents occurred.

The production of bituminous coal aggregated 79,318,362 tons of coal and of coke 12,185,112 tons. There were 30,130 coke ovens in Pennsylvania. The number of persons employed in mining soft coal and manufacturing coke was 109,018, and they worked on an average of 219 days in the year.

WAS NOT TO BLAME.

Governor Whitmarsh of Benguet Clear of Charges.

ARMY REFORMS FOR PHILIPPINES.

Adjutant General Corbin Has Found a Way to Cut Down Expenses of the Army of Occupation—Troops to Be Removed From Churches and Convents into Permanent Quarters.

Manilla, July 23.—The denials of Governor Whitmarsh of Benguet province to charges lodged against him that he had misappropriated native stock, worked convicts and other natives upon his farm and had utilized his official position to further his private interests have been accepted. The committee further decided that the burning of native huts during Governor Whitmarsh's expedition against the head-hunting Igorrotes had been warranted by the exigencies of the situation. Secretary Sherer, who could not agree with Whitmarsh, resigned.

Adjutant General Corbin's visit here will probably result in radical economical and administrative reforms in the army of occupation. It is estimated the total cost of maintaining the American army in the Philippines can be reduced by 60 per cent in the course of one year. The principal change will be the reduction of the present force to between 20,000 and 30,000 men. The abolishment of the present army districts is contemplated, and three brigades, with permanent headquarters at Manilla, Dagupan and Iloilo or Cebu, will be instituted in their stead. The troops will be concentrated at three points selected, abandoning all minor posts.

These changes will result in an enormous saving in the transportation of supplies and the paying of rental for barracks for the soldiers. At present, in most towns, the troops are quartered in churches, convents and public and private buildings, for the use of which considerable rentals are paid. In the majority of other cases, where the troops do not occupy public buildings, it is believed rental should be paid for quarters if their occupancy is continued, since these regions are pacified and the inhabitants have sworn allegiance.

Adjutant General Corbin and General Chaffee have decided upon the construction of barracks at the pumping station, about six miles from Manilla, and the source of the city's water supply, to accommodate three regiments of infantry, one of cavalry and eight batteries of artillery, as well as a general commissary and quartermaster's storehouse to cost $100,000. The erection of the latter building will reduce expenses by $20,000 a month, being the rentals paid for the commissary and quartermaster storehouses in Manilla alone. An electric railroad, connecting the docks on the Pasig river and the new storehouse, will be constructed. Generals Corbin and Chaffee have also decided upon one general military hospital to replace the seven military hospitals in Manilla and vicinity.

The reduction of the big fleet of government launches and government steamers has already begun. Permanent barracks have been erected at Dagupan to accommodate all troops necessary to northern Luzon. Government vessels will carry supplies for the southern brigade from the United States direct to Iloilo without touching at Manilla.

The concentration of the troops at Manilla, Dagupan, Iloilo or Cebu will begin at the close of the rainy season next November. As a further measure of economy arrangements are being perfected to stop the buying by various civilians and civil government employees of commissary stores, heretofore sold them at the army rates.

The telegraph system throughout the Philippine archipelago established by the signal corps has been taken over by the civil government.

The insular constabulary is being organized. It will be maintained by the insular government, and is expected to be amply able to preserve peace and enforce the law. This constabulary will, as a general rule, be armed with rifles, but its members have been given 5,000 shotguns and 2,000 ponies relinquished by the army.

Adjutant General Corbin will sail from the southern archipelago on the transport Lawton. From there he will go direct to China, returning to the United States via Vancouver.

Irene Identified.

Goshen, Ind., July 23.—Irene Cannoning, who said she was a Texas heiress to $300,000, is no longer a mystery. After baffling the police of this city a week she was identified as Kate Kanning, a young book agent of East Barre, Vt., having left East Barre last winter. She invented the heiress story and sent fictitious stories to the Barre papers in regard to herself. Her parents live in East Barre. When asked if her name was Kate she broke down and went into hysterics.

Wills, postmaster at Nashville, received a letter from Mr. Evans. The letter is in reply to one of inquiry and states emphatically that the story is without foundation.

MR. SAMPSON'S SAY ABOUT ADMIRAL SCHELY.

He Makes Some Insinuating Remarks.

Schely Remains Silent, but Will Issue a Statement Later.

Boston, July 23.—Rear Admiral Sampson, in an interview regarding the aspersions upon Rear Admiral Schely which appear in Macay's history, said: "In one way, possibly, I was responsible for the statements made in the history. I was commander-in-chief of the squadron and was responsible, so far as reading the proofs goes. If the historian has taken facts from my official reports to the navy department that is all well and good. I stand by first reports and official communications. I would welcome an investigation of this whole matter by congress or by the navy department, but I see no hope of its being taken up."

Admiral Sampson also said: "Schely's first statement regarding the battle of Santiago was moderately correct. The interviews given out some time afterward were not all correct. They were entirely different from his first accounts and were written in a different spirit. I think an interview purporting to have come from Admiral Scaly, published, I believe, Jan. 6, was entirely incorrect. Soon after this statement appeared in print he came aboard my ship and told me he had been incorrectly quoted. The reporter to whom the interview was granted was a friend of mine and he afterward told me he had published Schely's words practically as they had been spoken."

Schely Remains Silent.

New York, July 23.—Admiral Schely was seen at Great Neck, L. I., where he is now staying. He declared he would have nothing to say at present, no matter what was said by others endorsing Macay's history. He added that later, when others had said all they wanted to, he might issue a statement, but that was uncertain.

Four Professors Fired.

Storrs, Conn., July 23.—Four members of the faculty of the Connecticut agricultural college have been asked to resign as a result, it is said, of their alleged opposition to the policy of President Flint relegating the study of agriculture to a secondary place in the curriculum. The deposed instructors are Nelson S. Mayo, Henry A. Ballou, Thomas D. Knowles and Charles E. Myers.

Population of Indian Territory.

Washington, July 23.—The census bureau made public the figures giving the population by sex, nativity and color of Indian Territory, as follows: Males, 208,952; females, 183,105; natives, 387,202; white, 302,680; colored, 89,380. Of those classified as colored 85,832 are negroes, 27 Chinese, 1,107 Indians taxed, 51,393 Indians untaxed.

STRIKE

expected. Monday remained a quiet day in the 11 days of the Amalgamated Association's strike against the big steel trust.

The expected importation of men into the Wellsville mill failed to materialize and at McKeesport the attempt to resume the Dewees Wood tube plant was not made. At both points, which are considered by each side to be the steel strike centers, the situation is in statu quo, neither of the parties to the controversy having made any decided move. From the other important point, Duncansville, conflicting reports are received, and the result of the quiet struggle going on between the American Steel Hoop company and the Amalgamated Association is still uncertain.

There has been no change in the arbitration or mediation movement so far as the officials of the association are aware. The hope is still general among these officials, however, that a way will be found to bring about a settlement of the difficulties.

President Shaffer has never yet declared there was no possibility of concessions on the part of the Amalgamated Association. When asked his opinion on this matter he replied that he was unable to answer the question. Friends of the president, who have talked to him on this line, express the firm belief that if the proper steps were taken the manufacturers would find the association in a conciliatory mood and ready to meet any reasonable proposition consistent with honor. They say the whole tone of President Shaffer's remarks is inclined toward peace if he can secure it honorably.

The Sweatshop Strike.

New York, July 23.—It was announced at the garment makers strike headquarters that 67,000 men and women were on strike in New York, Brooklyn, Brownsville and Newark. The demands of the strikers are that they work no longer than 59 hours a week, receive a 35 per cent increase in wages and that the contractors, middlemen be required to give a bond assuring the pay of workers. There was considerable disorder as a result of the efforts of strikers to induce workers to quit. Revolvers were drawn at one shop but no shots were fired. Police made a dozen arrests.

Telegraph Operators Pinched.

Little Rock, July 23.—Trainmaster S. H. Barnes of the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf railroad caused the arrest of five telegraph operators on the charge of obstructing mails. A small strike of operators was inaugurated at Brinkley, Ark., and extended to Forest City, resulting in delaying traffic several hours. None of the strikers, it is claimed, belonged to the Order of Railway Telegraphers.

Discharged From the Navy.

Washington, July 23.—The division superintendents of the rural free delivery mail service assembled here to discuss the work of the service, consider new methods and map out the work of the new year. They conferred with the postmaster general. These represent the entire service, and with their division headquarters are as follows: E. H. Hathaway, Washington; W. R. Hazard, New York; W. B. Gaitree, Marietta, O.; Charles Lynn, Chicago; W. F. Conger, Nashville.

Austrian Count Coming.

Berlin, July 23.—Private dispatches from Vienna say that Count Adelbert Sternberg, an Austrian officer, who was with the Boers in the early part of the war in South Africa and was captured with General Cronje at Paardeberg, will soon go to the United States accompanied by Prince Miguel of Braganza.

Firemen's Strike Declared Off.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., July 23.—The president has approved the findings of the naval board in the case of Lieutenant Armin Hartrath, holding him not to be morally qualified for promotion, recommending his discharge with one year's pay. Lieutenant Hartrath was appointed to the naval academy from Michigan and his recent service has been on the Philadelphia. The finding is based on insobriety.

Mrs. Hanna's Plans.

London, July 23.—Mrs. Hanna, the divorced wife of Daniel R. Hanna, who with her children succeeded in leaving New York July 13 on the steamer Campania for London, in spite of the efforts to stop their departure, and who is staying with friends here, said in an interview: "I can not see why there should be this fuss about my affairs. The court gave me absolute control of my children, and Mr. Hanna consented before I left Cleveland that I should take the children away. The death of my mother recently and my own illness necessitated my coming abroad. When I reached New York I found my hotel surrounded with detectives bent on preventing my children leaving. If it is necessary I may send for my horses and make my future home in England, where I will prepare my boys for Eton and Oxford. I am determined to bring up my children myself and they are securely mine in England."

County Official Arrested.

St. Paul, July 23.—Walter T. Bourne, former chief deputy county auditor, is in the county jail accused of official malfeasance resulting in a loss to Ramsey county of $18,000. He was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Auditor W. R. Johnson, charging him with uttering a false and forged tax certificate refundment order on the county treasurer two years ago for $443 in favor of a fictitious Frank Underwood. There is a vast variety of other and similar charges, aggregating the amount stated. Bourne entered a plea of not guilty and the hearing was fixed for Aug. 8. Bail was fixed at $8,000.

I HAVE A TOOTH

It's been troubling you this long while. Perhaps it's partly decayed. A slight cold starts it aching furiously. The tooth next to it may be becoming decayed because it's decaying neighbor. That's nothing for you to do. Let me examine your teeth. If they need filling I will tell you so. If it's best to extract or if a cap will save the tooth will tell you that. Whatever your need I will do it for you—do it painlessly, too. This is something I guarantee.

Dr George H. Woods, Dentist.

224 S. Second St. South of Post Office.

Public Libraries.

Where was the first public library of the world located and when?

It was in Peterboro N H in 1799. And for years after the first library was established the whole number of books in public libraries was less than one sixteenth of the number that is now in the Boston library. But you know it has played an important part of the last century. There had been a great many libraries and in Europe for two or more centuries had been numerous but Peterboro was the first town in the world that got a money to found a school and a town library. It's not even the first catalog until 1799. This publication shows that the public books were twice as many now as then.

There is a great many more man books in every other direction and this is not true. It was good.

It was not until 1812 that the first library received a great deal of money from a private source when it got $20 which was given to it by Miss Susan M Gates who was the librarian and also the postmistress of the town and this represented her salary for eight months. It is interesting to know however that after this gifts were frequent and that this first library now has a handsome building and is well stocked.

Mr Carnegie is still giving vast sums of money for the establishment of libraries in various parts of the country—always conditional on the maintenance of the institution.
